Philly dog rescuers become TV stars

National Geographic channel gives intimate look into the lives of dogfighting detectives ● PSPCA official says its dangerous police work

PENNSYLVANIA SPCA

▶ Bengal, center, is director of the PSPCA's Human Law Enforcement unit — the subject of a new Nat Geo Wild documentary.

When the Pennsylvania SPCA and Philadelphia police busted a dogfighting ring in April, they raided three properties, arrested 17 people ranging in age from 19 to 42 and seized 18 dogs — as well as equipment like treadmills, vitamins and steroids.

What wasn't reported is that the raid came after nearly a year's worth of surveillance and investigation by an undercover PSPCA Humane Law Enforcement team assembled in 2010.

The new documentary-style Nat Geo Wild TV series "Philly Undercover," which features the bust on an episode, aims to shine light on the unit's efforts while showing the extent of the animal fighting epidemic in large cities.

"The show takes you into the underground economy of animal-fighting, tells you what goes on and how much money can be made — some of these fights are worth $100,000," PSPCA official George Bengal said.

The April bust, which made national headlines, is typical of the extensive web of people involved in the brutal sport. "There's a whole network out there that engages in the activity, from training animals for fighting to actually holding fights. And the breeding and selling of puppies for the sport is huge," Bengal said.

The PSPCA hopes the show will give viewers a more complete picture of what the agency does — and where donor money goes. "People often see one or two day headlines when we make a big bust or there's some kind of cruelty, but often we find the public doesn't understand what goes into this."

Episodes cover everything from rabbit-hoarding, rooster-fighting and breeder-busting to rehabbing the four-legged victims after they are rescued. In one tense moment caught on camera, two officers' cover is blown while they are doing surveillance in North Philly.

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH
awigglesworth@metro.us

Finch-fighting

Dogfighting dominates Philly's animal-fighting cases, Bengal said, but cockfighting is also prominent.

Finch-fighting, a relatively new sport, is also growing steadily more popular here, Bengal said. Male birds are pumped full of steroids, their beaks are sharpened and a female is often boxed off in the corner to encourage aggressiveness while they peck each other to death.

'Almost like narcotics'

PHILADELPHIA. Camera crews followed Humane Law Enforcement's undercovers from February through August. The crime fighters investigate tips, conduct surveillance and pose as criminals in every role, from animal purchasers to fighters.

"When you're dealing with animal fighting, it's almost like dealing with narcotics," Bengal said. "When you have an undercover unit you're trying to capture buyers, sellers — that kind of thing."

The first episode premieres Saturday on Nat Geo Wild.

LGBT court case gets federal help

- Woman seeks death benefit from Cozen O'Connor
- DOJ has declared federal marriage act unconstitutional

The Department of Justice has ruled the Defense of Marriage Act unconstitutional in response to a Pennsylvania case disputing whether a woman's same-sex partner was entitled to her death benefits.

Pa. Judge Darnell Jones II, who gave the Department of Justice and other parties in Cozen O'Connor v. Tobits a chance to weigh in before ruling, will consider all the arguments on March 12. The implications could be far-reaching for LGBT Pennsylvanians.

The Defense of Marriage Act is a 1996 law limiting the federal definition of marriage to a union between a man and woman. Pennsylvania also has its own "mini DOMA" similarly defining marriage.

"If it's overturned, it opens up all types of rights," said Mazzoni Center Legal Director David Rosenblum. "So many things are connected to the right to marry — tax implications, real estate transfers."

Law firm partner Sarah Farley's wife, Jennifer Tobits, argues she is heir to Farley's estate, but Farley's parents filed a separate Pa. claim that it is theirs.

Quoted

"The impact on gays and lesbians will be absolutely profound, whether it's Social Security, not being able to have your partner or children get the benefits of your government contributions — essentially taxation without equality."

Second teen arrested for alleged affiliation to YouTube videos showing South Philly vandalism

Police arrested a second teen Wednesday night for several incidents of vandalism in South Philadelphia, some of which popped up on YouTube and were documented by surveillance footage.

That came a day after another teen — who maintained a YouTube account that posted at least one of the videos allegedly showing him and his friends smashing car windows and spray painting "Wreck Locals" on vehicles and homes — surrendered to police in the face of increasing traditional and social media pressure.

Both are juveniles, reportedly between the ages of 15 and 16, so their identities and arrest photos will not be released. The second suspect is charged with 17 counts of criminal mischief and related offenses.

▶ One suspect allegedly appeared, spray can ready.

The owner of the YouTube account who posted a video depicting himself and several friends vandalizing cars and properties (as well as some entertaining dance shorts) turned himself in last night, police said.

After the police department posted surveillance footage of a Dec. 27 vandalism spree on the 2000 block of South Etting Street Tuesday, a number of people recognized one suspect and referred investigators to YouTube videos he posted showing at least one other incident of vandalism.

Allies align in attacks on Romney

WASHINGTON. Newt Gingrich, angry over his poor performance in the Iowa caucuses, may have a new and unlikely partner in his quest to tarnish rival Mitt Romney: President Barack Obama.

Though they both wish to win the 2012 election, Obama and Gingrich share an agenda in bringing down Romney.

Gingrich, who was first in Iowa polls only weeks ago, came in a disappointing fourth place after being attacked heavily in ads by an outside group aligned with Romney. REUTERS

Rising star stuck in third place

WASHINGTON. Republican candidate Rick Santorum is gaining ground in the early voting state of New Hampshire, but rival Mitt Romney still holds a strong lead ahead of Tuesday's primary.

Santorum finished behind Romney in this week's Iowa nominating contest, rising to third place among likely primary voters, according to a 7 News/Suffolk University tracking poll, edging ahead of former House Speaker Newt Gingrich and former Utah Governor Jon Huntsman.

Romney polled 43 percent support a day earlier, while Santorum had 6 percent. REUTERS

▶ Former U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum (R) greets diners at the Tilt' N Diner yesterday in Tilton, New Hampshire.

Former Pennsylvania Senator Rick Santorum describes himself on the campaign trail as a frugal man of faith and limited means.

"I come from a little different background than most Republicans," he said at a Jan. 2 town-hall meeting in Newton, Iowa, where he recalled playing as a child outside the coal mines in which his grandfather toiled.

Santorum has come a long way from those gritty early days to the top tier of the Republican presidential primary race after coming in second to Mitt Romney in the Jan. 3 Iowa caucuses. Since his 2006 re-election defeat, the former Pennsylvania lawmaker has gone from being one of the poorer members of the U.S. Senate to earning $1.3 million between January 2010 and August 2011. In 2007, he spent $2 million to buy a 5,000-square-foot home.

Santorum's financial rise was powered by consulting contracts with fuel producer Consol Energy, faith advocacy group Clapham Group and American Continental Group, a Washington consultancy, as well as media engagements.

"If he's claiming he's not an insider, this is the thing that insiders do — after public office they cash in," said campaign finance expert Kent Cooper. BLOOMBERG

Obama pitches plan for military austerity

The president has come out with a new military strategy in light of a call for budget cuts Republicans accuse him of all manner of crimes

President Barack Obama presented a revamped U.S. military strategy for an era of budget cuts that pledges to emphasize Asia and space and cyber capabilities while preserving missions such as defeating al-Qaeda.

The new strategy outlined on Thursday calls for investments in cybersecurity to defeat electronic attacks in expanded space-based intelligence platforms and for "developing a new stealth bomber." At the same time, it raises the possibility that U.S. "deterrence goals can be achieved with a smaller nuclear force" and says the U.S. presence in Europe "must evolve," without providing specifics.

Defense Secretary Leon Panetta said in an introduction to the strategy review that future U.S. forces "will be smaller and leaner" while more "technologically advanced."

Quoted

"Our military will be leaner, but the world must know: The United States is going to maintain our military superiority with armed forces that are agile, flexible and ready for the full range of contingencies."
OBAMA

Republican lawmakers, in e-mailed statements, criticized the strategy from different angles — as cutting too much, doing too little to root out waste or putting the U.S. nuclear deterrent at risk.

Representative Howard P. "Buck" McKeon of California, chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said Obama has packaged "a retreat from the world."

"An honest and valid strategy for national defense can't be founded on the premise that we must do more with less, or even less with less," he said in a statement. BLOOMBERG

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

BACHMANN: BLAME ELVIS

Michele Bachmann is out, and Elvis did her in. She whipped a South Carolina crowd into a frenzy last summer with her big smile, her even bigger campaign bus, and this unfortunate shout-out: "Let's all say happy birthday to Elvis Presley today!"

But the King was born in January. The day she made that speech was the anniversary of his death.

Was that the decisive moment in Bachmann's campaign? No. But it didn't help.

Neither did another misstep, when she told voters in Waterloo, Iowa, that she had the same spirit as their hometown boy, the legendary actor John Wayne. But he never lived there. John Wayne Gacy did. He was a serial killer who dressed up like a clown.

CNN=POLITICS

Quoted

"Candidates are rarely torpedoed by a single gaffe."
FOREMAN

I have mixed emotions about us media types skewering politicians for every twisted pop culture reference. Frankly, I don't think the Leader of the Free World should be keeping up with the Kardashians, the King or the Real Housewives. I tend to agree with critics who think that our political process has become too much of a game of "Gotcha!"

We pepper candidates endlessly with detailed questions about what they know, who they know, why they know them and when did all of this happen anyway? We ask them to be instant experts on everything from the economy, international affairs and farm policy to education, housing and alligator wrestling. Then, when they stumble, we pop open the trap door and drop them, like contestants on a game show, into the footnotes of history.

It's not fair. These folks want to be the president of the United States, not a Jeopardy champion.

But ... and this is a big caveat ... it is worth noting that candidates are rarely torpedoed by a single gaffe. Or even two or three. What does them in is a pattern of mistakes that suggests a certain overall sloppiness of thought, inattention to detail, or a shaky grasp of facts. Bachmann, while certainly an intelligent, talented politician, had a few too many of those moments. And she won't be the last to do so.

Maybe they were honest mistakes, blown out of proportion. But in the end, they — and Elvis — took her out. And I wonder if she's lonesome tonight.

As the comedy show returns for a second season on IFC, Fred Armisen talks about addictive television, the importance of editing and why he likes to get out of control

In one sketch during the new season of "Portlandia," the characters played by Fred Armisen and Carrie Brownstein decide to watch a single episode of "Battlestar Galactica" before they head out to a friend's birthday party. Unable to pull themselves away from the TV after 45 minutes, they miss the party, end up devouring the first season, and over a few consecutive days, the whole series. Jobs are lost, bills go unpaid and they stop getting up to use the bathroom. At one point Brownstein tiredly says, "I a little bit feel like I have a bladder infection, but I'm just going to get antibiotics after the next episode."

This scene is typical of the comedic duo's adoration of the absurd, and is one that could easily apply to viewers of their show. The first season recently began streaming on Netflix, and the second season premieres Friday.

▶ "Portlandia" premieres Friday night at 10 on IFC.

DANIELLE MATHIAS/IFC

Quoted

"We film so much stuff. We could do a whole season of what we didn't use."
ARMISEN

Armisen says he has found himself in similarly intense viewing marathons with shows like "Game of Thrones" and "American Horror Story."

"And 'The Wire,'" he says, "I burned right through that."

What makes the comedy hit so hard is Armisen and Brownstein's ability to create relatable situations that go awry. He says the pair are able to get so ridiculous because almost half of the show is improvised.

"We film so much stuff," he says. "We could do a whole season of what we didn't use."

Armisen says that a large chunk of that unused footage is he and Brownstein ruining the scenes by laughing uncontrollably at what the other one has come up with on the spot. He is quick to give away the credit for the finished product.

"We're not part of the editing process," he explains, "because those guys are geniuses."

Armisen says relinquishing that authority is liberating because every time he watches the edits, he finds himself saying, "Oh my gosh, I never thought that we wouldn't need that."

"That's a really weird part of the process, where you think you're in control, but you know it's good that you're not in control."

PAT HEALY
pat.healy@metro.us

Face the music

One of the things that sets "Portlandia" apart from Armisen's other comedy outlet, "Saturday Night Live," is the way the show handles musical guests. On "Portlandia," musical guests don't sing, they act.

"Sometimes when musicians do things like this, they come at it with just a slightly different way of playing things than a comedian, and that's just interesting," says Armisen.

▶ Brownstein and Vedder enjoy a picnic.

DANIELLE MATHIAS/IFC

Season 2 cameos include Eddie Vedder, Joanna Newsom and guitarists from the Sex Pistols and The Smiths. Since Brownstein is most well-known for her role as a singer and guitarist in the bands Sleater-Kinney and Wild Flag, and Armisen got his start in show business as a drummer in a band called Trenchmouth, do they ever try to arrange jam sessions with these stars?

"I feel like every time I turn to someone and start talking to them, the conversation always turns to, 'We're going to Australia,'" says Armisen. "Maybe they're just avoiding wanting to make any connections, like, 'I'm going to be wayyy out of the country.'"

Real-life inspiration

'That guy does exist!'

Armisen is probably best known to mainstream audiences for his portrayal of President Obama on "Saturday Night Live." The characters he plays on "Portlandia" are heightened versions of everyday people and self-serious hipster types (think feminist bookstore owners and bike messengers) that are so spot-on they feel like they must come from an arsenal of his own acquaintances. Not so, says Armisen.

"It's a weird thing, where it happens afterward," he says. "I thought it was just in my imagination, but then I'll drive around Portland and totally, straight-up, see guys like that. So it's like, 'Oh yeah, that guy does exist!'"

Sizing up the 2012 midseason schedule

Live from the Television Critics Association press tour: Metro heads to California to find out which networks will stick to their resolutions this year

It's that time of year when everyone is making resolutions — even television networks. Midseason offers programmers another shot at tweaking their schedules and wooing audiences with new programming. So I've headed to Pasadena, Calif., where the semi-annual Television Critics Association press tour is taking place, to check out the new offerings and see if the networks' promises of fresh, exciting shows are truly long-term commitments or doomed to be forgotten two weeks from now. For live reports from the TCA press tour, follow me on Twitter @amberatmetro and visit www.metro.us/tv. Here are a few TCA highlights that I'll be covering:

"Smash"
There hasn't been a show with this much pre-premiere buzz since "Glee" — and I'm not just saying that because this, too, is a music-centric series. I'll be talking to star Katharine McPhee and the rest of the cast in this Steven Spielberg-produced drama, which details the opening of a Broadway musical, on Friday. (Premieres Feb. 6 at 10 p.m. on NBC)

Set visits: "Suburgatory" and "New Girl"
Funny ladies have been the toast of the new TV season, and two of my favorite female-centric sitcoms are opening their sets to TV critics on Monday. ("Suburgatory" airs Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m. on ABC. "New Girl" airs Tuesdays at 9 p.m. on Fox.)

Vice presidents new and old
Al Gore, Current TV Chairman and Co-Founder — and, of course, our former vice president — will speak to critics about the state of cable news on Jan. 13. Julia Louis-Dreyfus, meanwhile, just plays the vice president on TV. Still, she'll be talking about the gig and her new HBO comedy, "Veep," on Jan. 13. ("Veep" will premiere in April on HBO.)

Is that your final answer?

It may not be the end of the world ... yet But as we begin 2012, the year the Mayan calendar ends, we ask a few celebrities what they would do on Judgment Day

Jamie Bell, actor

What's your last meal?
It would definitely be a meat dish. I love meat. It's so bad, but damn, it's pretty good. Maybe just cook a whole cow.
What is the last song you'll sing in the shower?
Maybe "Let it Be" [by The Beatles]. Or you could go out on something completely ironic like [the Monty Python song] "Always Look on the Bright Side of Life."
What is the last movie you'll watch?
I would love to say something really influential, about the goodness of humanity, but it would probably be "Jurassic Park."

Wiz Khalifa, rapper

What is the last song you'll sing in the shower?
"Save The Children" by Marvin Gaye.
What is the last movie you'll watch and with whom?
"The Notebook" with Amber Rose.
What is the one luxury item you'll bring with you to the New World?
My laptop.
Who is the one fellow celebrity with whom you'll want to travel to the New World? Amber.

Mindy Kaling, writer, producer, actress on 'The Office'

What would your last meal be?
My last meal would be probably Ethiopian food, my favorite kind of food. It's super heavy and I love it.
What is the last song you'll sing in the shower?
"Countdown" by Beyonce.
What is the last movie you would watch and with whom?
The last movie I would watch would be "You've Got Mail" and I'd watch it with my mom.
One luxury item you'd bring with you to the new world?
In the post-apocalyptical world where it's like Cormac McCarthy's "The Road" and everyone is dirty and disgusting, I'd bring a Judith Leiber clutch, like in my rags.
One celebrity you'd want to travel with to the new world?
Aaron Sorkin

Adam Carolla, comedian

What would your last meal be?
I'd go to the busiest restaurant, whose kitchen was most backed up, and then I would change my order three or four times. I'd stretch it out. I'd eat lobsters raised on Snickers bars then dipped in a buttermilk substance mixed with tempura sauce and then deep-fried. With heroin sprinkled on it.
What is the last song you'll sing in the shower?
There's two ways you can go: You can go with one of my favorites like John Hiatt or Elvis Costello and hear something you really want to hear. Or, a better approach would be to take a horrible song like "Maneater" by Hall & Oates and want to die.
What is the last movie you'll watch and with whom?
I would pick a long movie. There's a theme here, I want to stretch it out. I'd watch "Goodfellas" with Joe Pesci and make sure he got drunk and have him re-enact his scenes. I'd have Ray Liotta there, too, and make them do their crazy laughs for me.
What is the one luxury item you'll bring with you to the New World?
Wait a minute, this is stretching the boundaries of reality. You can't transport items. You're dead. There's no taking anything with you. METRO

The mackerel is having its moment in 2012

Weekend recipe

Spicy Mackerel with Chiles and Tomatoes

Dressed up with spicy chiles, sweet onions and tangy lime juice, this quick mackerel preparation will help you gain new respect for this underappreciated fish.

Ingredients

- 4 (1-inch-thick) mackerel fillets (about 1 pound), fins removed
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 medium yellow onion, halved and thinly sliced crosswise
- 3 medium jalapenos, thinly sliced
- 3 medium garlic cloves, thinly sliced
- ¼ teaspoon chili powder
- ¼ teaspoon ground cumin
- 2 medium tomatoes, cored, seeded and cut into medium dice

▶ Sea bass is so last year.

- 3 tablespoons freshly squeezed lime juice, from one lime

Instructions

1. Season fish generously on both sides with salt and freshly ground black pepper; set aside.

2. Heat oil in a large frying pan over medium heat. When it shimmers, add onion, jalapenos, garlic, chili powder, and cumin and season with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Cook until vegetables are soft and starting to brown, about 7 minutes. Add tomatoes, season with additional salt and cook until tomatoes just begin to break down, about two minutes.

3. Create four spaces in the vegetables and nestle fish, skin-side up, in the empty spaces. Cook until the underside is golden in color, about five minutes. Flip fish over, add lime juice and cook, scraping the bottom of the pan to incorporate any browned bits, until almost all the liquid is gone, about two minutes more.

An 'authentic' Angelina

Jolie directs her first film, a drama about the Bosnian war ● It's raw and real ● 'Some people just really could not handle it,' she says

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Jolie takes on the subject of war.

At the L.A. premiere for her debut as a writer-director of the Bosnian war drama "In the Land of Blood and Honey," Angelina Jolie made it clear that the film is hard to watch — intentionally so — and warned the audience that for two hours they would be asking themselves when it would end. While that may seem like a risky gambit for a commercial release, Jolie insists there was no other way to present it. "I personally feel [that] if you're watching a film about war, you should get a sense of what it's really like. So we tried to make it authentic," she says.

The war in question — represented onscreen with the unlikely love affair between a Serbian officer (Goran Kostic) and a Bosnian refugee (Zana Marjanovic) — was particularly atrocity-filled, and Jolie pulled few punches in depicting it. "You just can't soften this kind of war," she says. "And the reality is the four-and-a-half-hour cut was a lot worse. Some of the hardest things were actually cut out because some people just really could not handle it."

What's possibly most jarring about the film, though, are the details woven in to remind audiences that this all happened in the last 20 years right in Western Europe's backyard. But Jolie isn't looking to send audiences on a guilt trip so much as raise awareness. "I didn't intentionally make people feel guilty, but I have had that response from a lot of people — that they feel guilty that they didn't do enough," she says. "I feel guilty. I didn't know enough. So I think we all should feel that way about this particular war — and we should wonder what it is that we're going to look back on in 15 years and feel that we also didn't do, that's happening today."

While Jolie's name and profile certainly bring a certain prestige to the project, that didn't necessarily mean she had unlimited resources. And shooting every scene twice — both in the native regional language and in English, in the hopes of wooing subtitle-averse distributers — only put more pressure on the budget and schedule. "It was very fast. We had 41 days and I think $12 million, and we had three and a half years of war and many different seasons to recreate," Jolie says. "I found out how much snow costs. I'd say, 'I want to snow this whole area of Yugoslavia.' They would say, 'OK, well that is $100,000 worth of snow.' I would say, 'OK, but what's $20,000 worth of snow?'"

In taking on directing for the first time, Jolie leaned heavily on lessons learned from directors she's acted for and admired, most notably Clint Eastwood. "Clint has taught me about having a crew of good people that you respect and everybody treats each other well and there's no drama," she explains. "I tried to create a family so that everybody's just good people. When we were putting the team together we wouldn't say, 'Who's the most talented?' We'd say, 'Talented, but is he a nice person? Because this is a really hard subject matter, and we don't want people on set who aren't nice people.'"

Afghanistan?

While speaking to "60 Minutes" for "In the Land of Blood and Honey," Angelina Jolie let slip that her next directorial effort could focus on the war in Afghanistan. And while producer Graham King is ready to get to work on it, Jolie worries she might have spoken a bit too soon. "I said that I had this thing, but nobody has seen it and it's just something that I have on my desk — but now it's something that I'm talking about," she says.

She is willing, at least, to give a little more detail about the proposed project, which would focus on refugees in the region as well as U.S. soldiers effected by the conflict. "It is this lack of respect for female soldiers and what they go through and the new relationship between men and women when the women go to war," Jolie says. "So it was kind of a study in that."

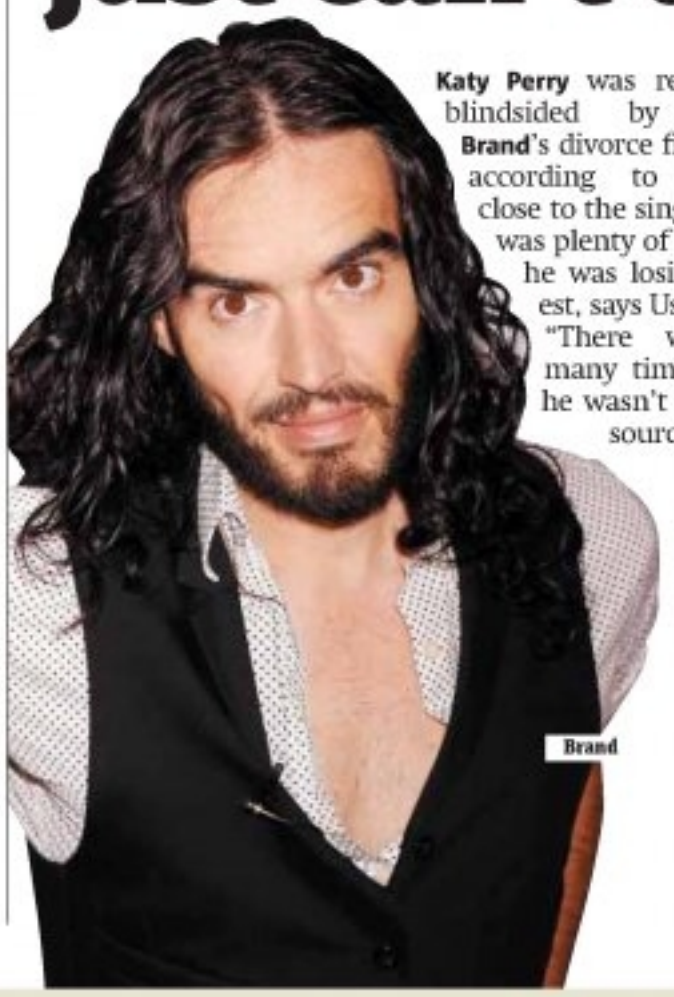
The Bronzer Age?

This just needs to be said: Is Clay Aiken always wearing foundation? Bronzer? And is that fake beard hair? Am I crazy in thinking he always looks like a ginger Real Doll? What is going on? OK, sorry. Tangent over. Here he is, filming last year for the new season of "Celebrity Apprentice," which premieres Feb. 15.

Russell Brand just can't tell a lie



Brand

Katy Perry was reportedly blindsided by Russell Brand's divorce filing, but according to sources close to the singer there was plenty of evidence he was losing interest, says Us Weekly. "There were so many times when he wasn't there," a source says, offering the last night of Perry's tour in November as an example: "He was totally uninterested and seemed annoyed he was there. I don't think he sat through one song." And then there was Brand's response to her "Saturday Night Live" hosting stint in December. Perry reportedly begged Brand to appear in a skit on the episode, but he declined and stayed in L.A. instead. And after it aired? "He told her that she wasn't that funny," the source says. "That really hurt."

But, um, he was right? It's hard to sit through a Katy Perry concert and she was Nancy Kerrigan-esque terrible on "SNL." Now, if only she would hit him with a taste of his own medicine and tell him to buy a bigger pair of pants.

Demi Moore is super self-reflective

Demi Moore admits that her split from Ashton Kutcher has left her shaken and insecure. "What scares me is that I'm going to ultimately find out at the end of my life that I'm really not lovable, that I'm not worthy of being loved," she tells Harper's Bazaar in a candid interview, adding that she fears finding out "that there's something fundamentally wrong with me and that I wasn't wanted here in the first place." But Moore is moving forward, thanks to some profound advice. "Somebody wrote something to me that said, 'Don't let your wounds make you become someone you're not.' That's really powerful. And not taking life too seriously," she says.

Forget acting, can Demi write a self-help book? She is the new Oprah!

Talking points

No reunion for Shriver

Despite hints of family togetherness and forgiveness over the holidays, Maria Shriver is not actually taking Arnold Schwarzenegger back, according to People magazine. "The reports of a reconciliation are not true," a source says of the estranged couple, who spent Christmas together with their children. "Arnold and Maria will always come together when it comes to supporting and loving their children."

Saldana and Cooper: Getting serious?

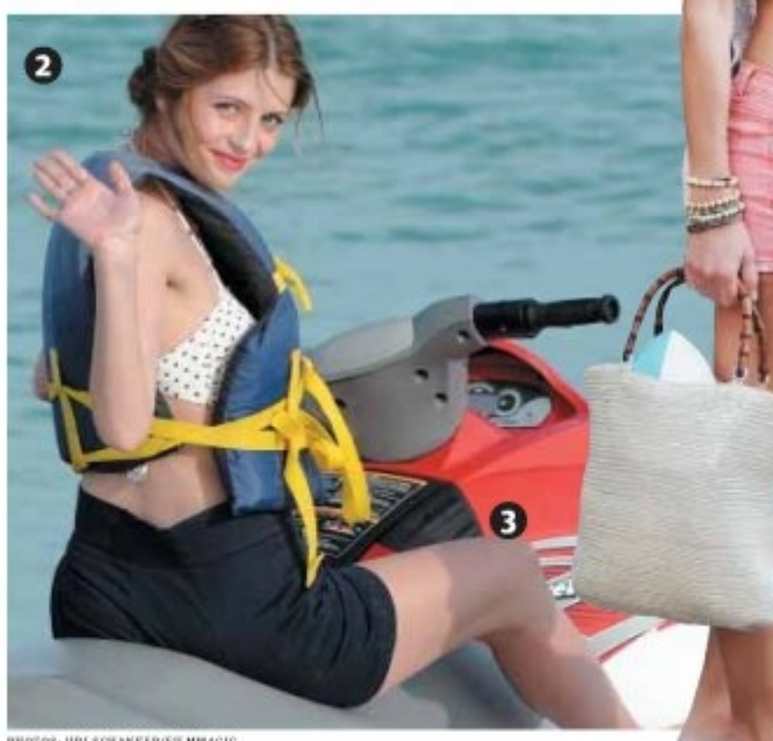
Rumors about Bradley Cooper and his "Words" co-star Zoe Saldana getting close apparently had some truth to them, as the pair were spotted getting very cozy at a 1940s-themed New Year's Eve party in Bel Air, according to Us Weekly. "They were making out for 20 minutes," a source says. And while they may be officially keeping each other company, Saldana is reportedly hesitant to let things get too serious too soon. "They're dating, but Zoe just left an engagement," says the source. "She's just looking to have fun."

West takes to Twitter!

It's been a while since Kanye West has turned heads with his Twitter account, and it appears he's making up for lost time with a recent three-hour binge of microblogging about some big plans. During the session, West discussed his new design company, Donda, which will "pick up where Steve Jobs left off," aiming "to help simplify and aesthetically improve everything we see hear, touch, taste and feel" and "dream of, create, advertise and produce products driven equally by emotional want and utilitarian need. To marry our wants and needs." West also discussed plans to serve as creative director for a new "Jetsons" film, design the next MTV Video Music Awards and fix America's educational system.

Celebs take on Miami Beach

While we're cold in the city, these celebrities have absconded to the warmth of Miami Beach, Fla. Let's live vicariously through them, shall we?



1. Joe and Melissa Gorga swapped New Jersey for the beach on Saturday.

2. Mischa Barton was sighted jet skiing on Miami Beach Monday.

3. Maria Menounos, rocking a pair of short-shorts, was spotted on Saturday.

4. Lookin' good, Lance Bass! The singer was spotted taking in some sun last weekend.

5. Kardashian hanger-on Jonathan Cheban was sighted before the New Year on the beach in Miami.

6. Jason Statham and Rosie Huntington-Whiteley were snapped last week in Miami.

7. The 51-year-old movie producer (yes, you read that right: 51) Rita Rusic flaunted her stuff on Tuesday.

Don't forget Sen. Ron Paul

RE: "IOWA CONTEST THROWS WRENCH INTO GOP RACE": How can you write an entire page about the Iowa results and not comment on Ron Paul? Only 5 percent down from first and second? Yet you comment on and even give Michele Bachmann, a sixth-place finisher, a section about her idiotic ways. How about some intelligent reporting?

COLLIN SMART, VIA E-MAIL

Federal govt. robbing us all

RE: "NUMBERS GAME: WE GOT SOLD OUT": When the Federal Reserve prints money, who gets it? Banks. Then they loan that money to corporations and so on and so forth until it reaches the middle and poor classes. By the time it reaches us, the market has adjusted to the increased money supply and we suffer with higher prices and thus decreased savings. The government is the enabler of big banks and big corporations which make up a part of the "1 percent." Cut the head off the snake. As President Andrew Jackson said to the central bank of his day, "You are a den of vipers and thieves."

KELLY DONNOE, VIA E-MAIL

We citizens have certainly noticed how prices have risen for all goods and services. They are going up, up, up while the value of the dollar goes down, down, down. This is the result of money inflation by the government and its partner in crime, the privately held Federal Reserve Bank. Hopefully the next election will correct this treachery.

FRANK ST. GEORGE, VIA E-MAIL

Limbaugh loves Metro

RE: "PERSON OF THE YEAR, 2011": It was good to see that Metro readers voted Steve Jobs the Person of the Year. Perhaps many of them were influenced by the great Limbaugh's lavish praise for Mr. Jobs over the years, in addition to Rush's accurate description of the also-rans in the voting (the occu-bums) as "parasites."

RITCHIE TIEMANN, VIA E-MAIL

Cut Obama some slack

RE: "ANYONE BUT OBAMA": If not Obama in 2012, who then? I don't see anyone promising on the horizon. Obama is doing the best he can with the hand he was dealt — all low cards and not a face card that's willing to help. Many would like to forget the origin of this mess, but those who are smart will know that he said it will take a long time to repair all the damage done.

Horoscope

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. You might profit for the moment if you think solely of yourself, but sooner rather than later you'll have to pay the price. Making it worse, your selfishness would be exposed.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. It would be best if you handle a problematical development rather than let your counterpart do so. His or her solutions could turn out to be a bit too reckless for you.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you're smart, you'll refrain from taking measures to even a score with a rival. Instead of being vindictive toward an offender, let the forgiving side of your nature guide your course of action.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Even if it's not convenient at the moment for you to do a favor for a pal, find a way to do so anyway. To go out of your way for someone is the true test of friendship.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. First and foremost, be realistic about your financial situation. If you can definitely make a profit on something, fire your best shot.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Instead of simply ordering someone about, set a good example first so that this person can see you're not asking anything of him or her that you wouldn't do yourself.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. There is an old World War II saying: "Loose lips sink ships." Let two friends who have confided in you know that they don't have to worry about leakage.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Be careful if the ante gets raised in an important undertaking. All concerned parties might start looking out for their own interests when they find out there is something of value at stake.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Weigh your gains carefully against what you could stand to lose. Have some second thoughts if the balance isn't equal.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you are prepared to be self-sufficient, the failure of a counted-on party to take care of an entrusted task won't set you back. Grin and bear it.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. There's a good chance that you might be called upon to clear up a dispute between friends. The only way you won't get into trouble is to let each party see that you are impartial.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. That road that leads to success in an important objective is likely to be littered with all kinds of impediments. Be prepared to have an alternative route mapped out.

food

Honest Tom parks it in West Philly

The popular taco and burrito truck is waiting out the winter months in a more permanent space

Tom McCusker rolled his Honest Tom's Taco Truck onto the local food truck scene in April 2009, offering breakfast and lunch tacos at Aviator Park, Clark Park and on the Drexel University campus. But the truck evolved into a restaurant in late December when Honest Tom's Taco Shop opened its doors in West Philadelphia. "The winters were really rough — it was snowy and very cold," McCusker says about the two winters his staff spent shivering in the truck. "Business lagged because of the weather, and the college kids also went away for breaks. Having the shop is so much easier. We have a home of our own and refrigeration!"

Open daily from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Honest Tom's offers breakfast tacos and burritos as well as locally roasted GreenStreet Coffee for the early morning crowd. The lunch and dinner menu currently boasts rice and bean, pork, chicken, sweet potato or beef tacos and burritos.

"Burritos and tacos are my favorite foods, but there was nowhere around where you could get them," says McCusker — resident of Powelton Village — about the decision to set up shop in West Philly. "And Clark Park has been so good to us, so we wanted to keep it in the neighborhood."

▶ No lie: Honest Tom's (261 S. 44th St., 215-620-1851) is serving up sweet potato tacos — and now offers delivery.

Still moving

Truck devotees, don't fret: Honest Tom's Taco Truck will still serve breakfast at the Clark Park Farmer's Market on Saturday mornings, and McCusker plans to return to his previous spots once the weather improves.

METRO

Breaking down the NFL, it's wild-card weekend

No Eagles, but plenty to watch as the NFL playoffs begin this weekend ◗ Bengals go for first postseason win since 1990 ◗ Steelers look to stop Tebow Time

Matchup	The scoop	Player to watch
BENGALS 9-7 at TEXANS 10-6 SAT., 4:30 P.M. (NBC) Line: HOU -3 Pick: Bengals 17, Texans 14	Defense and defense Texans finished second in yards allowed (285.7) and fourth in points (17.4). Meanwhile, Bengals ranked seventh in yards (316.2) and points (20.2). Expect Houston to rely heavily on NFL's second-best ground game.	Andy Dalton, QB, CIN Rookie of the Year candidate if not for Cam Newton. Dalton, recovering from flu-like symptoms, is the first rookie signal-caller taken outside of the first round to start all 16 games and make the postseason.
FALCONS 10-6 at GIANTS 9-7 SUNDAY, 1 P.M. (FOX) Line: ATL +3.5 Pick: Giants 24, Falcons 20	Giant expectations Which Giants team shows up? The one that lost four straight in the heart of the season? Or the one that won its last two to get in? In NY, they're talking about Eli Manning dialing up that 2007-08 Super Bowl magic. We'll buy in — for a round.	Jason Pierre-Paul, DE, NY On a Giants team loaded with elite pass-rushers, Pierre-Paul is emerging as their most disruptive. The second-year pro had 16.5 sacks on the season, with six in his final four games. And it doesn't hurt having Justin Tuck on other side.
STEELERS 12-4 at BRONCOS 8-8 SUNDAY, 4:30 P.M. (CBS) Line: DEN +8 Pick: Steelers 31, Broncos 10	Respect the logo Steelers could have been the AFC's No. 2 seed, if not for two losses to BALT. They enter banged-up — RB Rashard Mendenhall is out — but their defense, No. 1 overall (8th vs. run, 1st vs. pass), should carry them.	Tim Tebow, QB, DEN After going 7-1 as the starter initially, the "winner" has struggled recently throwing four picks and coughing it up three times as Denver backed its way in after losing three straight. MIKE GREGER

▶ Manning is sort of clutch in the postseason.

The big game

LIONS 10-6 at SAINTS 13-3
SAT., 8 P.M. (NBC)
Line: DET +10
Last meeting (Dec. 4, 2011): Saints 31, Lions 17
Pick: Saints 45, Lions 27

The Big Easy factor
Lions put up a fight early in the teams' Dec. 4 meeting, a 31-17 Saints win. But Drew Brees and Co. are clicking on all cylinders now. Besides, they enter unbeaten at home, including a 4-0 night-game record — beating opponents by an average of 41-16.

Read steps up, playing with Flyers top line

Flyers rookie Matt Read spent his first shift with the Flyers' top line Thursday in the team's 5-4 win over Chicago.

Read, playing alongside Claude Giroux and Scott Hartnell, assisted on Giroux's second-period goal which gave the Flyers a 2-1 lead. He finished with one point in 20 minutes, 44 seconds of ice time.

"I'm just going to try and stick to my game plan. Work hard and win puck battles in the corner and give those two guys the puck," Read said prior to Thursday night's game.

OK, so it wasn't the Stanley Cup Finals but the Orange and Black got a measure of revenge Thursday night with a 5-4 win over Chicago. James van Riemsdyk netted the game-winner on a power play, with 33 ticks left in regulation. Van Riemsdyk (2), Scott Hartnell, Claude Giroux and Jakub Voracek all lit the lamp. METRO ▶ Sixers are 3-2 entering Friday's home opener.

Sixers host Pistons in home debut

The Sixers tips off Friday night at 7 p.m. against Detroit in their home opener, after going 3-2 on a five-game road trip.

In addition to it being $1 hot dog night, the Sixers have many new in-game elements. Among them are new theatrical-style lighting, performances by the Dream Team dance group and the debut of courtside announcer Tom Lamaine.

The team will also honor members of the 1982-83 championship squad, including Julius Erving and Moses Malone. Video tributes will be displayed throughout the game.

The Sixers return to the Wells Fargo Center Saturday for an 8 p.m. tip against Toronto. METRO
